WASHING RUGS AT HOME.

Small Ones Can Be Made to Look as Bright as New.

The value of soap bark in cleaning woolen dress materials is known to nearly every woman who makes over dresses. An enterprising housekeeper recently found that she could use it in washing a small oriental rug with most gratifying success.

She got a five-cent package of the soap from the druggist and steeped it for two hours in a quart of water. Then she strained it through a cheesecloth bag, so that the fine particles of the bark would not stick to the rug.

Into the bath-tub, which was half full of warm water, she poured part of the clear, brown fluid made from steeping the soap bark. Then she put her rug, well beaten and swept, into the tub and pounded it with a stick. The water was soon very dirty. She let this water run off, filled the tub half full again and put in more soap bark liquid.

Then she drew the rug up, over the edge of the tub, three or four inches at a time, scrubbing it across with a stiff brush as she did so. After two rinsing waters she hung the rug on the line in the sun and wind. It dried after several hours and was exquisitely soft. It was also cleaner than it had ever been after being sent to the carpet cleaner. The colors were richer and the design itself seemed clearer.

BAKING HAM AT HOME.

Cooking in the Oven Gives Meat a Superior Flavor.

With the spring sewing on hand, the housewife will do well to have cold meats, salads, etc., prepared in quantities, so that she can continue her work in the sewing-room without constant interruption to prepare food. Here is a very excellent recipe for baking ham in a way that will make it retain its flavor, and furnish a delicious cold dish for many days.

A ham cooked in the oven has a superior flavor to one which is boiled in the usual manner. Soak the ham and after wiping it dry cover it entirely with a thick paste made of flour and water; then wrap it up in greased paper, tying it in several places to prevent it from slipping off. Put the ham on a baking tin and cook it in a well-heated oven, basting it frequently over the paper with warm dripping; if the paper should get all burnt place another thick sheet over it. A fairly small ham should be selected for cooking in the oven and for one weighing five pounds four hours should be allowed. When it is done remove the paper and paste, then strip off the skin and as soon as the ham is sufficiently cool brush it over with several coats of glaze and put away to get thoroughly cold.

THE LIKENESS ON THE CENT.

An Exception to the Rule Against Portraits on American Coins.

Coins of most of the nations bear upon them the faces of their rulers. In the United States each coin has an emblem of Liberty. The first coins struck after the formation of the federal union bore the face of George Washington. Gen. Washington disapproved of the custom and it was dropped. It has never been revived.

Portraits of prominent Americans appear upon postage stamps, internal revenue stamps and paper money, but never on coins. And it has been the custom to use no portraits of living men even on the currency and the stamps. But there is an exception to the rule of no portraits on American coins. The emblem of Liberty on the one cent is the goddess in an American Indian headdress, but the face shows no characteristics of the North American aborigine. It is the face of a little girl, Sarah Longacre Keen, upon whose head was placed the feathered ornament of a Sioux Indian. Her father was an engraver and he placed his daughter's head on the coin. Sarah Longacre Keen died in Philadelphia not long ago, after having served 35 years as the secretary of her city's branch of the Methodist Women's Foreign Missionary society.

They Enjoyed the Show Immensely, but Failed to Applaud.

In the parquet at the Orpheum last night sat a young man and his best girl. People behind them noticed that the young couple seemed to enjoy the show immensely, but neither would applaud, says the Denver Post. They would look at each other and smile and say "Fin!" "Isn't that great?" and other such things, but they would not applaud. Everybody else near by was applauding, and that started the people behind the young couple to wondering why they did not clap their hands and show their appreciation. Substantially. Finally James H. Cullen came on the stage and began his singing stunt. His first two songs made great hits, but still the young couple did not applaud. His third song was even better than the other two, and it was then that the mystery as to why the young people did not applaud was explained to those behind them. When Cullen finished the song the girl turned to her escort, "John," she said, loud enough for those behind to hear, "you'll have to let go my hand a minute. I've just got to applaud this man."

Celery and Orange Salads.

Select firm oranges which are not very sweet and cut into sections, removing all inner skin and seeds. Cut crisp celery into small pieces and mix the two in equal quantities with a French dressing in which lemon juice is substituted for vinegar. A few nut meats may be added to advantage. Serve on a bed of water-cress. Make a French dressing with a level teaspoon of salt, one-fourth spoon of paprika, six tablespoons of olive oil and three of vinegar or lemon juice.

Use for Old Kid Gloves.

Cut off the hands and save the arms of your long kid gloves. Use them for polishing silver, mirrors, cutlery, and jewelry. Out of the tops of old tan or grey gloves you can make charming bags for carrying opera-glasses, etc. Cut the kid to the same pattern as is used for silk or velvet bags, line with silk of any pretty color, and trace your initials on the outside in water colors or with embroidery silk.

Might Be Contrivance.

A young matron of Baltimore, upon entering her nursery, found her youngest in tears. "Why, what's the matter with Harry?" she asked the nurse. "He's mad, ma'am," explained the nurse, "because I wouldn't let him go to the Simmons' across the street." "And why wouldn't you let him go, Norah?" "Because, ma'am, they're havin' charades, so he said, 'an' I wasn't sure whether he'd had this or not.'"—Parry's Week.
